I've had my eye on Mike Dies ever since I recently finished playing Psydra's first game, Dark Scavenger. Dark Scavenger is a really weird but well-designed and well-written RPG, so I was a little surprised to see that their next game was what appeared to be a standard platformer. Don't let the images fool you-- this is an equally weirdly-written and cleverly designed puzzle platformer. There's not as much of a narrative as there was in Dark Scavenger, but that's to be expected, and what narrative there is there kept me pushing through, trying to collect all of the orbs and messages. I generally don't go nuts trying to get all of the collectables in most games, but the design of the puzzles here had me seeking them out just so I could see what sort of hellish trial the game was going to put me through to try to collect them.

As the name implies, you are going to die playing this game, and you're probably going to die a *lot*. It's to Psydra's credit that deaths never feel cheap or unearned. The controls are responsive and tight, guaranteeing that nearly every death can be attributed to user error. I don't know that it fits the description of a Metroidvania, necessarily-- you won't find yourself earning upgrades as you progress through the game, but that doesn't matter. This is a great puzzle-platformer that is well worth your attention and money.. I adore you !!. Easy Achievements and with cards but unfinished project.

. Playable, gives about 4 hours of gameplay.

Good graphics, good music and is fun. Boss fights are a little annoying but that's the only negative aspect. It's incredibly average. Some of the puzzles are a bit frustrating, and it's about as scary as a dead fly.

It's hard to not recommend this game since it's free, but here I am. Play it if it interests you.

The villain of the game as a playable character and you want to charge people for that?
Really?

That is one of the most lazy dlc idea i've ever seen.. Fantastic adventure, one of the best I've played in a long while. The story was a well written and the puzzles made sense in the world and didn't hold my hand through them but still remained fair and balanced. To address some complaints I've seen in the reviews:

1. Graphics: I found them to be ideal for this game, they were detailed and there were interesting ambient effects like the rain and smoke in bars.
2. Voices: If you watch any 40's noir films you quickly notice that's how they talk, I thought it really enhanced the atmosphere.
3. Humor: Dry and funny! Just like the movies.

If you like noir movies and you like adventures you're going to like this!. Bad little indie horror!. Dakka Dakka Dakka. And hats. That sums up this DLC. 10/10, would viking across the Sectors again. Still wish more people played, but hey- on the upside all games fill fast.. Lupinball is a 4 player arena game that plays more like a bullet hell then anything else. The art is a well crafted pixel based styled, with 15 unique levels, an awesome soundtrack, leaderboards and some extra silly quotes about wolves to boot! With a low base pricepoint, there isn't anything this game missed its mark on.. The game itself is pretty good. But an hour or two in, the game freezes. It freezes at the exact same point in the gameplay, even on future attempts to play, so progress is impossible. This freezing is not immediately obvious, because the point at which it occurs is a couple hours into gameplay. Cannot recommend.. short story with multiple endings (4). You are only asked to take a decision twice (each time you have 2 options). The beauty off this game is in the drawing and the music, it has a special atmosphere + BONUS: it's free :P and it's sweet. It is hard to enjoy multiplayer game when literally no one is playing. Back in a days when it wasn't free and some people played it I remember it wasn't that good either, felt unpolished and not very visually impressed after some time I had enough.. Not recommend can't play as Spice Girls

. Interesting game that is different to chess. It needs to be made more accessible for non-chinese speakers. By this I mean there need to be graphical board pieces eg an elephant instead of a Chinese symbol for an elephant. This will make it easier for people not familiar with the game to play and would look cool too.
